FATAL ACCIDENT AT DUNKIRK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Dunkirk, N. Y., June 13.—Three prominent Dunkirk residents were killed on a railroad crossing at Westfield, near this city, at 7 o'clock this morning, when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a fast limited passenger train. The dead are Fred Bird of Central avenue, Dunkirk, formerly of Schenectady, plant superintendent for the American Locomotive Company; George Bird, his son, and Otto Walters, a brother-in-law of Bird and a foreman in the Brooks' plant in this city. George Bird lived ten minutes after the accident; the other two men were instantly killed. The machine was thrown thirty feet and smashed to fragments. As near as can be learned, there were no eye witnesses to the accident, but a farmer, whose place the machine had passed a minute previous to the collision, states the automobile was not going at a great rate of speed.

WHITMAN LETS HASSETT GO

Upon recommendation of Charles S. Whitman, district attorney, Justice Davis dismissed Friday the indictment for attempted grand larceny pending against Thomas J. Hassett. The recommendation was made by the district attorney on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction. Hassett, who was secretary to the board of water supply, was indicted in connection with the investigation into alleged graft in the Catskill aqueduct work, in December last. Hassett, the confidential adviser of John A. Bessel, state engineer, was indicted on the strength of assertions made before the grand jury by Anthony C. Douglass, ex-mayor of Niagara Falls, and a contractor, who said that in June, 1911, Hassett told him that the board of water supply would not award to Douglass the contract for the Hudson river syphon unless he came across with $50,000. Douglass did not pay over the $50,000, and he failed to get the contract.

Mr. Whitman, in making the motion, told Justice Davis that in preparing the case he had learned from the first time of constant communication between Hassett and Douglass. This, he said, had been going on ever since the alleged attempt to obtain the $50,000. "I produce two letters," said Mr. Whitman, "written by the complainant to George W. Batten, which seriously discredit the motives of the complaining witness in testifying as he did before the grand jury. These letters show that the complaining witness was at that time, with the defendant's assistance, striving to procure monetary compensation from the contractors to whom the contract referred to in the indictment was finally awarded. These letters, coupled with the complaining witness's efforts to keep in close communication with the defendant for a period of several months subsequent to the date of the transaction have satisfied me that these facts have been laid before the grand jury no indictment would have been found. A trial of the defendant upon the indictment would not result in conviction."

Judgment Against Railroad.

In the action brought by Harry Rudick against the Ontario & Western Railroad to recover for loss of goods that had been shipped, which was tried recently in city court, the plaintiff has been awarded a judgment of $52 by City Judge O'Reilly. TEDDY GUARDED FROM THE FURIES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, June 13.—Guarded from militant suffragettes by Scotland Yard detectives, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, arrived here today from Madrid, where he had attended the wedding of his son, Kermit Roosevelt, to Miss Belle Willard, daughter of Ambassador Willard. Colonel Roosevelt was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, and his cousin, Philip Roosevelt, of New York. On the way from the English channel to London the Archbishop of Canterbury was a passenger on the same boat train with the colonel. The prelate cordially greeted the ex-president and asked anxiously about the condition of his health. "I never felt better in my life," declared the American statesman. The Roosevelt party was met at the Charing Cross railway station by Walter H. Page, the American ambassador, the staff of the American embassy and by Arthur Hamilton Lee, a Unionist member of Parliament, whose guest Colonel Roosevelt will be over the week end. From the station the American was driven to the residence of Mr. Lee, where he granted an audience to the newspaper men. In answer to a shower of questions as to United States politics and his controversy with A. Henry Savage-Landor over his Brazilian discoveries, the colonel said:

"I cannot discuss politics nor am I at liberty to say anything further about my South American discoveries. I think I covered all points in my statement issued in Paris last night." The chief remark made by the former president at the reception to the press was: "Gentlemen, I am half full of cinders from thirty-six hours of traveling and my chief desire now is to get into a bath tub."

A number of detectives mingled with the crowd at the Charing Cross station, keeping a wary eye upon all the women to prevent any suffragette disturbance. It was not anticipated that any hostility would be shown the colonel for he has already expressed himself in favor of "votes for women," but the British officials did not want the ceremonies of reception interrupted. Among those invited to meet Colonel Roosevelt during his stay in England are Field Marshal Earl Roberts; Owen Seaman, the editor of Punch; John St. Lee Strachey, publisher of the Spectator; Sir Sidney Colvin, an official of the British museum; Sir Bertrand Dawson, physician extraordinary to King George, and Sir Horace Plunkett, a famous agricultural expert.

On Monday Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign minister, will give a luncheon to Colonel Roosevelt which will be attended by many prominent persons. A great deal of curiosity had been expressed before the arrival of the colonel as to what honors would be paid him by members of the government, because of the ex-president's expressed opposition to free trade for the Panama canal, a proposition vigorously sponsored by the British government.

PROTOCOL HAS BEEN AGREED TO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
On Board President Wilson's Train, Baltimore, Md., June 13.—Word reached President Wilson today while he was en route from Washington to Princeton, N. J., that the protocol to suspend hostilities in all its essential details by the Huertista delegates to the Niagara Falls mediation conference. The message came from the American representatives. Although President Wilson will not say that he believes the mediation conference will be completely successful he regards the outlook better than it has been at any time since the conference opened. The critical point in the mediation conference is expected to be reached next week when the Carranzistas are expected to make it plain whether or not they will agree to an armistice. President Wilson's party includes Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, Mrs. McAdoo, Dr. C. T. Grayson and Presidential Secretary Joseph Tumulty.

BIG STEAMERS COLLIDE AT SEA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, June 13.—The Hamburg-American liner Pretoria and the American liner New York were in collision in a dense fog during the night, according to a wireless despatch received here early today. The collision was stated to have caused no serious results, as the New York was stopped at the time. She reported her position 180 miles east of Nantucket lightship shortly after daybreak. The Pretoria struck the New York a glancing blow. As the impact was not heavy there was no panic aboard either vessel and it is understood many of the passengers were not even awakened.

Three Fishermen Drowned.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 13.—After a large Newfoundland dog had struggled in vain to save his master and two companions, three men were drowned near the Nanticoke dam last night while fishing. The victims were Adam Brozanski, Theodore Brozanski and Bolisk Krakeveski. The bodies were recovered today. The boat was overturned in a whirlpool. The dog, which had been in the boat, tried to help the men by swimming with them, but became exhausted and was barely able to reach the shore.

Suffragette Smashes Window.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Birmingham, England, June 13.—A lone suffragette went upon a rampage here today and smashed the windows in the Labor Exchange. The woman fought with the police when arrested and had nearly all her clothing torn off before she was dragged off to a police station. She gave her name as "Miss Haley."

Stevenson is Better.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Chicago, June 13.—Adlai E. Stevenson, former vice-president of the United States, was reported slightly improved today. He was able to partake of liquid nourishment for the first time in three days. Cooler weather was principally responsible for his rally, physicians declared.

EQUAL RIGHTS LAW TO BE ENFORCED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, June 13.—Attorney General Carmody has determined that the Equal Rights Law, prohibiting proprietors of hotels from discriminating against guests shall be enforced. Recently, Mr. Carmody received complaints that certain hotel proprietors in advertising their places stated that only certain races would be admitted to their hotels. In an effort to prohibit such discrimination, Mr. Carmody sent letters to the district attorneys in the counties in which these hotels are located, calling upon them to enforce the law which prohibits such discrimination. Among those to whom letters were sent were William D. Cunningham, district attorney of Ulster county and Fred M. La Duke, district attorney of Essex county. In a letter to Mr. Carmody, Mr. Cunningham declares that he knows nothing of the advertisement complained of and says that "if I am to act upon this complaint I must necessarily have some detail information regarding it. Please state in what paper and what issue this advertisement appeared." In a letter replying to Mr. Cunningham, Mr. Carmody points out that it is the duty of the district attorney to investigate the matter and ascertain if the hotel in question has been guilty of a violation of the law in question. "I do not know," says Mr. Carmody's letter, "in what newspaper the advertisement appeared. My purpose in calling your attention to it was that you might ascertain whether or not the place named was soliciting patronage contrary to the law. If it is there must be no other evidence of it, aside from the advertisement. I assume you will regard it as your duty to see whether or not it is a fact."

Under the Equal Rights Law, which was passed by the legislature last year, advertisements indicating that certain classes and races will be excluded constitute the same crime as the actual exclusion. Mr. Carmody emphatically declared that he proposed to turn over every case of exclusion, or advertisements indicating that certain races will be excluded, to the district attorneys of the counties where hotels violating this law are located. He also said he would insist upon the district attorneys affected prosecuting those who are guilty of violating the statute.

The Equal Rights Law provides that any persons violating it shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $100 nor more than $500 to be recovered by the person aggrieved thereby or by any resident of the state to whom such person shall assign his cause of action. Any violation of the act is also made a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500, or imprisonment of not less than thirty days or more than ninety days, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Union Picnics Planned.

The regular monthly meeting of the teachers and officers of the Fair Street Reformed Sunday school was held on Friday evening at the home of Miss Edith Elting. Plans for the union picnic to be held at Accord on Friday, June 26, by the Sunday school and the school of the First Reformed Church were talked over. The trip will be made by automobiles. Plans for the Children's Day services to be held on Sunday, June 21 were also talked over.

HUERTA PROMISES TO BE RETIRED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Mediation Headquarters, Niagara Falls, Ont., June 13.—Having signed an agreement that President Huerta shall retire and be succeeded by a government that will be recognized by the United States, mediators and delegates in informal conferences today took up the second delicate point in the negotiations:

The form which this new government shall take and whether it shall be inducted into office by appointment at the hands of General Huerta or by simultaneous proclamation by the two warring factions of the republic. This is the second half of the first plank in the mediators' original plan.

Should an understanding be reached before night and the settlement is reduced to writing there will be taken up tomorrow the third and all important point—what man shall be provisional president and who shall be the cabinet heads?

One of the highest authorities in the conference declared today that there could be no basis for the report that the wishes of the Constitutionalists would be slighted.

The mediators have made it plain that they will welcome the sending of delegates from the revolutionist party at any time under terms of an armistice. They believe that the appointment of representatives who shall merely talk privately with the American and Huertista delegates would also help in hastening the agreement. But they are convinced that the United States will give its consent here to no scheme which in the end will be rejected by Carranza. The Mexican delegates have attempted to secure an agreement upon the date at which the provisional government is to be created. They want it placed in power as soon as possible—perhaps within a very few days. The Americans do not believe that an election can be held until the latter part of August and that the establishment of a provisional government is not essentially a matter of haste. Two weeks will probably be allowed from the date of the signing of a protocol.

The form of government may be either that of a provisional president chosen here or a provisional president chosen in Mexico. All of whom shall be selected in the mediation conference and two of whom shall represent the Huertista party. It is generally conceded that the provisional president and half of any cabinet which may be named by the conference must be of Constitutional sympathies.

In the plan already adopted is included provision that the laws of Mexico shall remain unchanged during the term of office of the provisional president and that all elective officers in the republic shall be filled anew at the election to be called this summer.

That the Huertista delegates are bent upon placing Pedro Lascurain, former minister of foreign affairs and provisional president in the chair to be surrendered by Gen. Huerta became evident today. Mr. Lascurain, the confidence of the representatives of Huerta spoke with enthusiasm of Lascurain's culture, his honor and his administrative ability. They were far from pleased at the suggestion of the name of Luis Cabrera, and apparently doubted the strength of Iglesias Calderon. Jose Vasconcelos was described as attorney for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

The Constitutionalists appear to have given their support to Cabrera and Calderon, either of whom would be acceptable to Gen. Carranza. They have looked with deep suspicion upon Lascurain since he resigned the presidency in Huerta's favor. His excuse was that he did this unbidden has not been accepted. Lascurain has lived quietly in Mexico City during the Huerta regime.

WHITMAN LETS HASSETT GO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 13.—Guarded from militant suffragettes by Scotland Yard detectives, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, arrived here today on the wedding of his son, Kermit Roosevelt, to Miss Belle Willard, daughter of Ambassador Willard. Colonel Roosevelt was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, and his cousin, Philip J. Roosevelt, of New York. On the way from the English channel to London the Archbishop of Canterbury was a passenger on the same boat train with the colonel.

The prelate cordially greeted the ex-president and asked anxiously after the condition of his life.

"I never felt better in my life," declared the American statesman.

The Roosevelt party was met at the Charing Cross railway station by Walter H. Page, the American ambassador, the staff of the American embassy and by Arthur Hamilton Lee, a Unionist member of Parliament, whose guest Colonel Roosevelt will be over the week end.

From the station the American was driven to the residence of Mr. Lee, where he granted an audience to the newspaper men. In answer to a shower of questions as to United States politics and his controversy with A. Henry Savage-Landor over his Brazilian discoveries, the colonel said:

"I cannot discuss politics nor am I at liberty to say anything further about my South American discoveries. I think I covered all points in my statement issued in Paris last night."

The chief remark made by the former president at the reception to the press was:

Gentlemen, I am half full of cinders from thirty-six hours of traveling and my chief desire now is to get into a bath tub."

A number of detectives mingled with the crowd at the Charing Cross station, keeping a wary eye upon all the women to prevent any suffragette disturbance. It was not anticipated that any hostility would be shown the colonel for he has already expressed himself in favor of "votes for women," but the British officials did not want the ceremonies of reception interrupted.

Among those invited to meet Colonel Roosevelt during his stay in England are Field Marshal Earl Roberts; Owen Seaman, the editor of Punch; John St. Lee Strachey, publisher of the Spectator; Sir Sidney Colvin, an official of the British museum; Sir Bertrand Dawson, physician extraordinary to King George, and Sir Horace Plunkett, a famous agricultural expert.

On Monday Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign minister, will give a luncheon to Colonel Roosevelt which will be attended by many prominent persons. A great deal of curiosity had been expressed before the arrival of the colonel as to what honors would be paid him by members of the government, because of the opposition to free tolls for the Panama canal, a proposition vigorously sponsored by the British government.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, June 13.—Attorney General Carmody has determined that the Equal Rights Law, prohibiting proprietors of hotels from discriminating against guests on the basis of race, would be admitted to their hotels. In an effort to prohibit such discrimination, Mr. Carmody sent letters to the district attorneys in the counties in which these hotels are located, calling upon them to enforce the law which prohibits such discrimination. Among those to whom letters were sent were William D. Cunningham, district attorney of Ulster county and Fred M. La Duke, district attorney of Essex county. In a letter to Mr. Carmody, Mr. Cunningham declares that he knows nothing of the advertisement complained of and says that "if I am to act upon this complaint, I must necessarily have some detail information regarding it. Please state in what paper and what issue this advertisement appeared." In a letter replying to Mr. Cunningham, Mr. Carmody points out that it is the duty of the district attorney to investigate the matter and ascertain if a violation of the law is in question. "I do not know," says Mr. Carmody's letter, "in what newspaper the advertisement appeared. My purpose in calling your attention to it was that you might ascertain whether or not the place named was soliciting patronage contrary to the law. If it is, there must be no other evidence of it, aside from the advertisement. I assume you will regard it as your duty to see whether or not it is a fact."

Under the Equal Rights Law, which was passed by the legislature last year, advertisements indicating that certain classes and races will be excluded constitute the same crime as the actual exclusion. Mr. Carmody emphatically declared that he proposed to turn over every case of exclusion, or advertisements indicating that certain races will be excluded, to the district attorneys of the counties where hotels violating this law are located. He also said he would insist upon the district attorneys affected prosecuting those who are guilty of violating the statute.

The Equal Rights Law provides that any persons violating it shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $100 nor more than $500 to be recovered by the person aggrieved thereby or by any resident of the state to whom such person shall assign his cause of action. Any violation of the act is also made a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500, or imprisonment of not less than thirty days or more than ninety days, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Union Picnics Planned. The regular monthly meeting of the teachers and officers of the Fair Street Reformed Sunday school was held on Friday evening at the home of Miss Edith Elting. Plans for the union picnic to be held at Accord on Friday, June 26, by the Sunday school and the school of the First Reformed Church were talked over. The trip will be made by automobiles. Plans for the Children's Day services to be held on Sunday, June 21 were also talked over.

THE EDDY IS A REAL REFRIGERATOR WITH SLATE-STONE SHELVES

Not an imitation. Not an experiment. Not a hollow sham. Not made for a parlor ornament. Not made to suit somebody's fad or fancy. Not made with open joints filled with cement to absorb grease and odors, and make your refrigerator a germ breeder.

But, made for what a real refrigerator is intended for, that is to keep food pure and sweet with the least amount of ice consistent to obtain a perfect circulation of pure, cold, dry air. The inside lining is air-tight; nothing can penetrate back of it to breed disease and germs.

Absolutely Sanitary THAT'S THE EDDY

EXERCISES AT ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

The closing exercises of St. Mary's school will take place in the new hall on Wednesday, June 24, at 2 p. m., and Thursday, June 25, at 7:45 p. m. The little tots will entertain their friends with a song entitled "What a Boy and Girl Can Do." The boys will give a minstrel show which will cause much merriment among their parents and friends. The principal part of the program will be the production of the beautiful mystic operetta, "Every soul," by J. F. X. O'Connor S. J. This operetta has caused quite a sensation in all the cities where it has been played and the people of Kingston will not be less appreciative of its intrinsic beauty.

Every soul is seeking the land of the Sunrise Sea, where she will find happiness. Her first guide is the voice of nature, which she does not fully understand, but because of her fidelity an angel is sent from on high to lead her from nature to grace.

The voices of nature are not clear. The spirit of evil joins in the voice of nature and confuses them so that Every soul may not clearly understand.

Under the promptings of her angel Every soul begins to understand more clearly and listens to the voices of the waves and sets out for the land of the Sunrise Sea. Her angel tells her the way will not be without a struggle because of the Spirits of Darkness. Every soul fears these spirits, but her angel and the Spirit of Light defend her from the powers of Darkness and they are conquered and vanish. Every soul is rejoiced at being shielded and delivered from the powers of evil and meets with the forest flowers and birds. They speak to her and encourage her on her way and give her great joy. She is not yet free of anxiety, for Sorrow comes to Every soul, but Gladness and Hope are near and Sorrow is soon banished. Gladness tells her of the winds that whisper joy, and Hope tells of the rainbow of promise, the arc that stood in the heavens as a prelude of no more rain.

The whispering winds and the entrancing rainbow cheer her with the hope of abiding peace soon to come. The sunbeams break upon Every soul and she bursts into song, yearning more and more for the Sunrise Sea. And as the last note of sad longing is fading away there rush in upon her in a tumult of wildness, Pleasure, Mirth, Fun, Laughter, and Jollity. They dance about her in revelry because she will have none of them and the Immos of Darkness return, but are driven away again by the Spirits of Light and once more every soul is victorious over all that would impede her way to the Land of the Sunrise Sea.

Finally having overcome all obstacles she meets with the blessed Spirits of Joy, who tell her in song that she is near what they so love—the Golden Shore, where will burst upon her the vision of the rainbow, where all sorrow, doubt, evil and fear are cast aside, and on the Golden Shore the gleaming waters light up the vision of glory. A song of exaltation and glory goes up from all nature, from the good spirits and from God's friends, and while the evil ones sink down into darkness Every soul enters upon the joy of the land of the Sunrise Sea.

THE EDDY IS A REAL REFRIGERATOR WITH SLATE-STONE SHELVES

Not an imitation. Not an experiment. Not a hollow sham. Not made for a parlor ornament. Not made to suit somebody's fad or fancy. Not made with open joints, filled with cement to absorb grease and odors, and make your refrigerator a germ breeder.

But, made for what a real refrigerator is intended for, that is to keep food pure and sweet with the least amount of ice consistent to obtain a perfect circulation of pure, cold, dry air. The inside lining is air-tight; nothing can penetrate back of it to breed disease and germs.

Absolutely Sanitary THAT'S THE EDDY

EXERCISES AT ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

The closing exercises of St. Mary's school will take place in the new hall on Wednesday, June 24, at 2 p. m., and Thursday, June 25, at 7:45 p. m. The little tots will entertain their friends with a song entitled "What a Boy and Girl Can Do." The boys will give a minstrel show which will cause much merriment among their parents and friends. The principal part of the program will be the production of the beautiful mystic operetta, "Every soul," by J. F. X. O'Connor S. J. This operetta has caused quite a sensation in all the cities where it has been played and the people of Kingston will not be less appreciative of its intrinsic beauty. Every soul is seeking the land of the Sunrise Sea, where she will find happiness. Her first guide is the voice of nature, which she does not fully understand, but because of her fidelity an angel is sent from on high to lead her from nature to grace. The voices of nature are not clear and the spirit of evil joins in the voices of nature and confuses them so that Every soul may not clearly understand.

Under the promptings of her angel Every soul begins to understand more clearly and listens to the voices of the waves and sets out for the land of the Sunrise Sea. Her angel tells her the way will not be without a struggle because of the Spirits of Darkness. Every soul fears these spirits, but her angel and the Spirits of Light defend her from the powers of Darkness and they are conquered and vanish. Every soul is rejoiced at being shielded and delivered from the powers of evil and meets with the forest flowers and birds. They speak to her and encourage her on her way and give her great joy. She is not yet free of anxiety, for Sorrow comes to Every soul, but Gladness and Hope are near and Sorrow is soon banished. Gladness tells her of the winds that whisper joy, and Hope tells of the rainbow of promise, the arc that stood in the heavens as a prelude of no more rain.

The whispering winds and the entrancing rainbow cheer her with the hope of abiding peace soon to come. The sunbeams break upon Every soul and she bursts into song, yearning more and more for the Sunrise Sea. And as the last note of sad longing is fading away there rush in upon her in a tumult of Wildness, Pleasure, Mirth, Fun, Laughter, and Jollity. They dance about her in revelry because she will have none of them and the Imps of Darkness return, but are driven away again by the Spirits of Light and once more every soul is victorious over all that would impede her way to the Land of the Sunrise Sea.

Finally having overcome all obstacles she meets with the blessed Spirits of Joy, who tell her in song that she is near what they so love—the Golden Shore, where will burst upon her the vision of the rainbow, where all sorrow, doubt, evil and fear are cast aside, and on the Golden Shore the gleaming waters light up the vision of glory. A song of exaltation and glory goes up from all nature, from the good spirits and from God's friends, and while the evil ones sink down into darkness Every soul enters upon the joy of the land of the Sunrise Sea.

FIVE CHICAGO BANKS CLOSED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 13.—The State Bank of Calumet, affiliated with the LaSalle Street Trust and Savings Bank—the Lorimer Bank—which was closed yesterday, did not open its doors for business today and State Bank Examiner D. V. Harkin took charge.

The failure of the State Bank of Calumet to open brought the number of Chicago banks closed during the past 24 hours following action by the state banking department to five. They were:

The LaSalle Street Trust and Savings Bank.
 The State Bank of Calumet.
 The Illinois State Bank.
 The Broadway State Bank.
 The Ashland-Twelfth State Bank.

Three down state banks dominated by C. B. Munday, vice president and controlling factor in the Lorimer institution, were in good shape, according to an announcement this morning.

Munday declared that the LaSalle Street Trust and Savings Bank would pay dollar for dollar. Examination of the affairs of the bank was pushed with all rapidity by Harkin and an extra force of examiners and accountants today.

Harkin said today that unless there is a decided change in the current affairs of the bank it would be necessary for the state auditor's office to ask for a receiver for the LaSalle Street Bank and for any of the smaller banks involved in the crash which are found to be beyond saving.

Crowds of depositors besieged the door of the LaSalle Street Bank early today, struggling to get inside. Outside the Ashland-Twelfth State Bank and the Illinois State Bank crowds collected, shouting to the bank officials to open their doors and give them their savings.

In front of the Ashland-Twelfth State Bank, which is located in the Ghetto district, a large crowd of depositors were dispersed at midnight by the police, but they resumed their visit at 5 o'clock this morning.

The closing of the Calumet Bank was ordered following a meeting of Charles W. Novak, president of the institution, and the board of directors early today. President Novak said that the bank had $100,000 deposited in the LaSalle Street Trust and Savings Bank and for this reason the Calumet institution was closed.

A big crowd of depositors stood in front of the bank when Mr. Novak arrived this morning, but he assured all that their money would be forthcoming within a comparatively short time.

FRENCH CABINET HAS RESIGNED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, June 13.—In a desperate effort to save his political life, President Poincare appealed today to Rene Viviani, former minister of instruction, to form a cabinet to succeed the Ribot ministry, which resigned yesterday.

Upon the success of M. Viviani, who is a Socialist, will probably depend the political fate of President Poincare. If Viviani is unable to form a new government or if he does succeed in making up a ministry which is forced from office, President Poincare will undoubtedly have to surrender to his political enemies.

Among the Radicals and Socialists who are bitterly opposed to the Poincare policies, one of the chief leaders is Joseph Caillaux, former minister of finance, whose wife is at present in jail pending trial for the killing of Gaston Calmette.

The gravest political situation of the present century faces the government of France. In addition to disension over the three year military law and other governmental policies, the national treasury is nearly empty and the government is not in a position to borrow any more money. M. Ribot went into office as premier with the intention of borrowing $190,000,000 to put the government upon its feet, but his overthrow yesterday prevented the carrying out of this legislation.

The Bourse was affected today by the political situation and rentes (Government bonds) were weak.

STAMPING OUT GLANDERS.

Horsemen Warned Against Horses Brought From New York.

The state department of agriculture at Albany, has been for some time making a special effort to eradicate glanders, which seems to be spreading among the horses of the state.

The methods of diagnosis are becoming accurate, and the means of control so practical and efficient that it is hoped to gradually close in upon the infected centers and confine the spread of glanders to the smallest possible area, and finally, entirely eradicate it from our state.

With these facts in view the commissioner of agriculture has declared a quarantine on the introduction and distribution of diseased horses in New York state, and the movement of horses from New York city to other part of the state without proper inspection.

Dr. Morton Lown, veterinary surgeon of this city, has been asked to co-operate with the department in the enforcement of this quarantine.

Anyone purchasing horses from New York city should not accept them unless a health certificate is sent with them, to comply with the order issued by the commissioner. Dr. Lown is inspecting the horses now used in the aqueduct construction.

POLICE WATCH REESE'S HOUSE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Baltimore, Md., June 13.—David Meredith Reese, Jr., the wealthy man from whose house boat, Florence, pretty Ella C. Winter went to her mysterious death a week ago last Thursday night is under police watch today in the fashionable Walbert apartments where he lives.

Acting upon instructions from State's Attorney Nicholas Green and Sheriff Potee of Anne Arundel county, two detectives established a close surveillance over Reese.

Reese seemed angered rather than frightened by the action of the authorities.

"Let them watch me if they care to," he said.
 "I am not going to run away for I have nothing to fear. I know no more about Miss Winter's death than I have already told. I have nothing to fear from any further investigation. I am as anxious as any one else in this city to have the girl's death cleared up. I will give any help that I can in that direction. As I said yesterday I say today that I believe Ella Winter committed suicide."

Sheriff Potee left during the forenoon for Annapolis to have another conference with State's Attorney Green. He refused to discuss the mysterious death of the pretty young stenographer but said he might have something important to give out upon his return.

For hours throughout the night detectives with lanterns searched the banks of the creek near Curtis Bay where the girl's hat had been found. They made a close examination of a deserted brick yard for some other physical evidence which would help them to solve the mystery. The search yielded nothing so far as could be learned.

The authorities are looking for another girl who is believed to have been in the habit of visiting the house boat Florence. Word has reached the police that Miss Winter had a beautiful rival whom she feared.

Suffrage Resolution Adopted.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 13.—The resolution providing for an endorsement of woman suffrage was adopted by the twelfth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at today's session. The resolution was placed before the convention by the resolutions' committee when today's session opened, and after a brief debate the delegates voted to adopt it.

Federals Sink Rebel Steamer.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

San Diego, Cal., June 13.—Advices received here today from Mazatlan, said that the Mexican troop ship Guerrero engaged in battle with the Constitutionalist armed steamer Culiacan near Guayamas last night, and finally succeeded in sinking the rebel ship. The number of casualties, if any, was not given. A shell from a Constitutionalist battery burst in a hospital in Mazatlan.

FIVE CHICAGO BANKS CLOSED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 13.—The State Bank of Calumet, affiliated with the LaSalle Street Trust and Savings Bank—the Lorimer Bank—which was closed yesterday, did not open its doors for business today and State Bank Examiner D. V. Harkin took charge.

The failure of the State Bank of Calumet to open brought the number of Chicago banks closed during the past 24 hours following action by the state banking department to five. They were:

The LaSalle Street Trust and Savings Bank.

The State Bank of Calumet.

The Illinois State Bank.

The Broadway State Bank.

The Ashland-Twelfth State Bank.

Three down state banks dominated by C. B. Munday, vice president and controlling factor in the Lorimer institution, were in good shape, according to an announcement this morning.

Munday declared that the LaSalle Street Trust and Savings Bank would pay dollar for dollar. Examination of the affairs of the bank was pushed with all rapidity by Harkin and an extra force of examiners and accountants today.

Harkin said today that unless there is a decided change in the current affairs of the bank it would be necessary for the state auditor's office to ask for a receiver for the LaSalle Street Bank and for any of the smaller banks involved in the crash which are found to be beyond saving.

Crowds of depositors besieged the door of the LaSalle Street Bank early today, struggling to get inside. Outside the Ashland-Twelfth State Bank and the Illinois State Bank crowds collected, shouting to the bank officials to open their doors and give them their savings.

In front of the Ashland-Twelfth State Bank, which is located in the Ghetto district, a large crowd of depositors were dispersed at midnight by the police, but they resumed their visit at 5 o'clock this morning.

The closing of the Calumet Bank was ordered following a meeting of Charles W. Novak, president of the institution, and the board of directors early today. President Novak said that the bank had $100,000 deposited in the LaSalle Street Trust and Savings Bank and for this reason the Calumet institution was closed.

A big crowd of depositors stood in front of the bank when Mr. Novak arrived this morning, but he assured all that their money would be forthcoming within a comparatively short time.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, June 13.—In a desperate effort to save his political life, President Poincare appealed today to Rene Viviani, former minister of instruction, to form a cabinet to succeed the Ribot ministry, which resigned yesterday.

Upon the success of M. Viviani, who is a Socialist, will probably depend the political fate of President Poincare. If Viviani is unable to form a new government or if he does succeed in making up a ministry which is forced from office, President Poincare will undoubtedly have to surrender to his political enemies.

Among the Radicals and Socialists who are bitterly opposed to the Poincare policies, one of the chief leaders is Joseph Caillaux, former minister of finance, whose wife is at present in jail pending trial for the killing of Gaston Calmette.

The gravest political situation of the present century faces the government of France. In addition to dissension over the three year military law and other governmental policies, the national treasury is nearly empty and the government is not in a position to borrow any more money. M. Ribot went into office as premier with the intention of borrowing $190,000,000 to put the government upon its feet, but his overthrow yesterday prevented the carrying out of this legislation.

The Bourse was affected today by the political situation and rentes (Government bonds) were weak.

STAMPING OUT GLANDERS.

Horsemen Warned Against Horses Brought From New York.

The state department of agriculture at Albany, has been for some time making a special effort to eradicate glanders, which seems to be spreading among the horses of the state.

The methods of diagnosis are becoming accurate, and the means of control so practical and efficient that it is hoped to gradually close in upon the infected centers and confine the spread of glanders to the smallest possible area, and finally, entirely eradicate it from our state.

With these facts in view the commissioner of agriculture has declared a quarantine on the introduction and distribution of diseased horses in New York state, and the movement of horses from New York city to other part of the state without proper inspection.

Dr. Morton Lown, veterinary surgeon of this city, has been asked to co-operate with the department in the enforcement of this quarantine.

Anyone purchasing horses from New York city should not accept them unless a health certificate is sent with them, to comply with the order issued by the commissioner. Dr. Lown is inspecting the horses now used in the aqueduct construction.

POLICE WATCH REESE'S HOUSE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Baltimore, Md., June 13.—David Meredith Reese, Jr., the wealthy man from whose house boat, Florence, pretty Ella C. Winter went to her mysterious death a week ago last Thursday night is under police watch today in the fashionable Walbert apartments where he lives.

Acting upon instructions from State's Attorney Nicholas Green and Sheriff Potee of Anne Arundel county, two detectives established a close surveillance over Reese.

Reese seemed angered rather than frightened by the action of the authorities.

"Let them watch me if they care to," he said.

"I am not going to run away for I have nothing to fear. I know no more about Miss Winter's death than I have already told. I have nothing to fear from any further investigation. I am as anxious as any one else in this city to have the girl's death cleared up. I will give any help that I can in that direction. As I said yesterday I say today that I believe Ella Winter committed suicide."

Sheriff Potee left during the forenoon for Annapolis to have another conference with State's Attorney Green. He refused to discuss the mysterious death of the pretty young stenographer but said he might have something important to give out upon his return.

For hours throughout the night detectives with lanterns searched the banks of the creek near Curtis Bay where the girl's hat had been found. They made a close examination of a deserted brick yard for some other physical evidence which would help them to solve the mystery. The search yielded nothing so far as could be learned.

The authorities are looking for another girl who is believed to have been in the habit of visiting the house boat Florence. Word has reached the police that Miss Winter had a beautiful rival whom she feared.

Suffrage Resolution Adopted.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 13.—The resolution providing for an endorsement of woman suffrage was adopted by the twelfth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at today's session. The resolution was placed before the convention by the resolutions' committee when today's session opened, and after a brief debate the delegates voted to adopt it.

Federals Sink Rebel Steamer.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

San Diego, Cal., June 13.—Advices received here today from Mazatlan, said that the Mexican troop ship Guerrero engaged in battle with the Constitutionalist armed steamer Culiacan near Guaymas last night, and finally succeeded in sinking the rebel ship. The number of casualties, if any, was not given. A shell from a Constitutionalist battery burst in a hospital in Mazatlan.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 13, 1914.

NATION-WIDE PROHIBITION.

In spite of the squirming of members of the House of Representatives, they will be compelled to go on record very soon on the question of submitting to the States a constitutional amendment designed to wipe out the liquor business. The text of the proposed amendment, which every one should read very carefully, is as follows:

The sale, manufacture for sale, transportation for sale, importation for sale, of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes in the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof, and the exportation for sale thereof, are forever prohibited; the Congress or the States within their respective jurisdiction shall have power to enforce this article by all lawful legislation.

If we are correctly informed, more than half of the territory of the United States is now "dry," so that it would seem to be easy to get this amendment adopted. In dry districts there is no saloon vote to be taken into account, while the advocates of no-license are active and powerful, so that a politician who desires to remain in power feels it necessary to vote for prohibition. It is true that many men vote the dry ticket because they do not care to have saloons in their neighborhood and are well aware that they can get their private supplies by express, and they might feel differently about interference with their own habits, but that makes no difference to the representative who is up for re-election. He simply has got to vote against the Demon Rum every time, even if he knows that a majority of his constituents think he is going too far. Therefore, we should not be surprised to live to see the proposed amendment in force.

It may be a new thought to the average man that the same kind of prohibition provided for in this amendment prevailed over the whole world until quite recently. Liquor was not manufactured "for sale." Noah did not send down to the corner gin mill for the wine which made him drunk. Everybody made his own liquor or went without until long in the Middle Ages. Until the eighteenth century people of standing in their communities made their own beer, the brewers supplying only the poor classes. The history of spirituous liquors is about the same. Not many brands of whiskey are a hundred years old. The reason that brewers and distillers finally drove out private manufacturing was that they were able to make goods superior to what the Encyclopedia Britannica calls "the muddy, highly hopped and alcoholized beverages to which our ancestors were accustomed."

When this amendment goes into force everybody will make his own alcoholic drinks. Distilling apparatus can be procured cheaply. Already we see advertisements of packages of prepared malt and hops which anybody with an empty keg can turn into beer. Naturally, the consumption of stimulants will be terribly increased while the quality will become incomparably worse. Inebriate asylums will be filled to overflowing and the death rate will be boosted by those diseases which result from indulgence in unwholesome drinks. When the little Peterkin of the future asks old Kaspar "what good came of it at last?" he will get the answer, "Why, that I cannot tell, but 'twas a famous victory."

Some German scientists have devised an apparatus for exploring the interior of the earth. This discovery comes at a good time. There is no longer any mystery about the North and South Pole, the innermost parts of China and Tibet have been traversed by white men, and Colonel Roosevelt has put on the map the only river which can run up hill and down dale. Nothing of special importance can be learned about the objects in the firmament, since such information as how they dig canals on Mars, etc., would merely gratify idle curiosity. With the interior of the earth the case is different. There are doubtless unimagined stores of wealth down there. Men are walking over deposits of rich ore without suspecting it. There is water to be had in the deserts if one but knew where to bore for it. Many a worthless farm is the lid of an undreamed-of goldmine. These Germans are coming to the United States to exhibit their device, and we venture to say that they will make more money and get more free advertising than even their countryman, Dr. Friedman, of tuberculosis cure fame.

BLINDNESS.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

Henry James tells that once, while traveling along the mountains of North Carolina he was very much disturbed by the evidences of what he called unmitigated squalor. Every now and then he would come across a rude little log cabin set in a dismal clearing. Its chinks were roughly plastered with clay, and as it stood there, with the hills around it, it seemed as if the mountaineer had purposely made it as forbidding as he could.

The smaller trees he had cut down, and their charred stumps, unpromising and ugly to a degree, remained to add to the havoc that had been wrought. The big trees had been girdled and killed, that their beautiful foliage might not cast any shade; and around the whole cheerless outfit ran a zigzag rail fence to keep out the cattle and pigs, and to give fitting tone to the picture.

There the mountaineer dwelt with his wife and children; and as his eyes swept out over the Indian corn planted at irregular intervals between the dead stumps and trees and on to the chickens and pigs feeding in the woods, his gaze took in his whole earthly possessions, barring an axe, a gun and a few necessary utensils.

And a bit further down the road, or up as it happened, would be another rude cabin in as dismal a setting, another little stretch of forest despoiled, another squatter and his family given over to ugliness—and not one touch of artificial grace to atone for the loss of Nature's beauty.

As the philosopher thoughtfully rode by and as he looked at one, then another and another of those rude cabin homes, the awful pity of it shocked him through and through. Talk about going back to nature! He said—ah, but he wanted "the best spoils of culture woven in." It was dreary, dull and hopeless; and oppressed by the woesome pictures, he asked the mountaineer who was driving him what sort of people they were that had made those new clearings.

"All of us," replied the driver. "Why, we ain't happy here unless we are getting one of these coves under cultivation."

As in a flash the stranger's eyes were opened and he knew that he had been losing the whole inner significance of the thing. He had looked at the havoc and that was all that he saw. But the settlers—that was very different. When they looked at the stumps there was nothing hideous about them, for they eloquently spoke of the sturdy arms and the obedient axes that had brought victory to the workers. And the dead trees, shorn of their green beauty, allowed the sun to peep through on their corn. Even the hideous split rails sang a merry song of earnest toil and of sure reward for their labors. And as for the cabins—why, they were the homes that sheltered themselves and their families; and the whole clearing, which to him had been pitilessly ugly, to them was a symbol redolent with victories.

And he smiled as he fancied the settlers peeping in upon him and his indoor ways of life at Cambridge, utterly blind to the ideality as he saw it.

And the point of it all? It was a lecture to students and he was trying to impress upon them the importance of being as little blind as possible in dealing with folk whose lives, ideals, environment and all were totally different from theirs. He told them that the whole world was more or less blind in that way, but cautioned them to remember to be very slow in judging other lives, other ideals, other thoughts than their own, for if they might somehow get a glimpse down under the surface where the real selves lived they might realize that they were the ones who had missed the beauty and the inner significance.

And one thinks that as the deep student, Henry James, found his revelation there on the rough mountainside, it must have made him feel very blind to the interests of those mountaineers to their squallid-looking homes, and he must have realized, as seldom, if ever, before, that the inner selves of us all surge along under cover, with no one quite understanding, and with few caring very much.

And the strange part of it is, it is not only among the mountains of North Carolina, back in the districts where the squatters hold forth, that we need to remember to be very tolerant indeed of the folk that we meet, but, rather particularly, among those who are closest at hand. We have ambitions, ideals, purposes and plans and notions of our own; and, at best, it is only the few who half understand. And they—perhaps if we were less blind, less self-centered than we are, and might look through their eyes, we might learn to admire where we have only criticised.

It is appalling to think of those way-back squatters viewing their lives as Henry James viewed them—but, happily, he saw the mud, they found the stars. And it is mightily subduing if we only remember that it may be nothing but blindness that keeps us from learning the inner significance of lives and of conditions all around us which we do not admire over-much.

"I called, Mrs. Jims, to take my congee." "Well, you won't get it, for we never had nothing like that of yours here."—Baltimore American.

Pompous lady: "Must I put this stamp on myself?" Post Office Clerk: "Well, you can if you like, but it's usual to put it on the letter."—London Standard.

"Some day," cried the outraged poet, "you editors will fight for my work." "All right," sighed the editor, resignedly, "I'll be a good sport if I get licked."—Puck.

"I was so disappointed that I was out the other day when you called, Miss Percival." "So was I. I felt sure I'd find you, because as I turned the corner I saw you go in."—Boston Transcript.

"Do you know his wife well?" "Not at all." "Would you like to be introduced to her?" "I don't think it would be safe. I'm the friends he always blames for keeping him out late."—Detroit Free Press.

"I suppose you are thinking up new things to tell the people out home." "No," replied Senator Sorghum. "I'm trying to find some way to take back what I told them when I was here before."—Washington Star.

The sailor: "Don't be alarmed, miss, but the steamer has sprung a leak and is quite likely to sink within fifteen minutes." The young woman: "Mercy, how very sudden!" "Yes, miss. Will you let me add that I mean to do my best to save you miss?" Thank you, sir, but of course I can't be saved unless my chaperone is saved, too." "Very stout lady with the hock nose?" "Yes." "Good night, miss."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Thrifty Genius.

There is a certain famous violinist who frequently visits this country, and who among his acquaintances, is almost as noted for his parsimony as for his genius. Among this musician's admirers was a young woman who was determined, if possible, to procure some souvenir of the great man. Her opportunity came one rainy day when she chanced to encounter the musician on Broadway. He was provided with an old cotton umbrella, green with age; while the young woman carried a nice new silk one.

"Oh, if you would only give me some slight remembrance of yourself—no matter how small!"

The great man surveyed her keenly, and then gave a glance at the old cotton umbrella that covered him. This he thrust into her hands, saying:

"Certainly, my dear young lady. I shall be delighted. We will exchange umbrellas."—Lippincott's.

Hard on Clark.

It is conceded in Washington that Dr. Frank G. Clarke is the most atrocious punster in America, or, for the matter of that, in the entire solar system. The other night at the club a company was talking about puns. Somebody asked H. what was the best pun he had ever heard. H. replied: "That one about the duck."

—goes into the water, you remember, for diverse reasons, and comes out from sundry motives." "And what do you think absolutely the worst?" "The next one that Clarke is going to make."—Boston Transcript.

A Mean Trick.

Two lawyers, one a veteran and the other a novice, were arguing a case before a judge renowned for his incorruptibility. The novice, however, was unaware of this. Taking the veteran, his opponent, aside before the case went on he said:

"Don't you think it would be a good move for me to send a box of cigars to the judge, with my card in it?"

The other hung up his hands in horror. "Man, your case would be as good as lost!" he exclaimed. "That judge prides himself on his honesty above all else, and he'd decide against you, no matter what the evidence was, simply to teach you not to try bribery with him."

"Oh, I guess it'll be all right if I send the cigars," insisted the novice. The other, too disgusted to give him any further good advice, left him to his fate.

The case was tried and decided by the judge in favor of the novice. The latter, much elated, buttonholed his veteran opponent as he was leaving the court room.

"Well, I sent the cigars to the judge!" he announced, triumphantly. "You did, did you?" said the other, incredulously. "I'm simply amazed that he decided in your favor."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 13.—Weakness was displayed by the list at the opening of the stock market today and declines were suffered by nearly all issues. Union Pacific was one of the most active securities opening at 156 1/4 for a loss of 1/4. Within twenty minutes it had declined to 155 1/4.

United States Steel Common was 1/4 lower at the beginning of trading but soon had increased. This decline continued weakness was displayed by American Beet Sugar which made the biggest decline of all the stocks. This issue was sold down to 27 in a few minutes, after having closed at 29 last night.

Among the other losses were: Southern Pacific, 1/4; Amalgamated Copper, 1/4; Corn Products, 1/4; Pennsylvania, 1/4; New York, New Haven & Hartford, 1/4; Missouri Pacific, 1/4; and Atchafalaya, 1/4.

Contributing causes for weakness were the Chicago bank failures and weakness in the foreign financial markets due to the political chaos in France and the possibility of a war between Greece and Turkey.

The curb was heavy. Americans in London were weak on narrow trading.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 13, 1914.

NATION-WIDE PROHIBITION.

In spite of the squirming of members of the House of Representatives, they will be compelled to go on record very soon on the question of submitting to the States a constitutional amendment designed to wipe out the liquor business. The text of the proposed amendment, which every one should read very carefully, is as follows:

The sale, manufacture for sale, transportation for sale, importation for sale, of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes in the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof, and the exportation for sale thereof, are forever prohibited; the Congress or the States within their respective jurisdiction shall have power to enforce this article by all needful legislation.

If we are correctly informed, more than half of the territory of the United States is now "dry," so that it would seem to be easy to get this amendment adopted. In dry districts there is no saloon vote to be taken into account, while the advocates of no-license are active and powerful, so that a politician who desires to remain in power feels it necessary to vote for prohibition. It is true that many men vote the dry ticket because they do not care to have saloons in their neighborhood and are well aware that they can get their private supplies by express, and they might feel differently about interference with their own habits, but that makes no difference to the representative who is up for re-election. He simply has got to vote against the Demon Rum every time, even if he knows that a majority of his constituents think he is going too far. Therefore, we should not be surprised to live to see the proposed amendment in force.

It may be a new thought to the average man that the same kind of prohibition provided for in this amendment prevailed over the whole world until quite recently. Liquor was not manufactured "for sale." Noah did not send down to the corner gin mill for the wine which made him drunk. Everybody made his own liquor or went without until along in the Middle Ages. Until the eighteenth century people of standing in their communities made their own beer, the brewers supplying only the poor classes. The history of spirituous liquors is about the same. Not many brands of whiskey are a hundred years old. The reason that brewers and distillers finally drove out private manufacturing was that they were able to make goods superior to what the Encyclopedia Britannica calls "the muddy, highly hepped and alcoholized beverages to which our ancestors were accustomed."

When this amendment goes into force everybody will make his own alcoholic drinks. Distilling apparatus can be procured cheaply. Already we see advertisements of packages of prepared malt and hops which anybody with an empty keg can turn into beer. Naturally, the consumption of stimulants will be terribly increased while the quality will become incomparably worse. Inebriate asylums will be filled to overflowing and the death rate will be boosted by those diseases which result from indulgence in unwholesome drinks. When the little Peterkin of the future asks old Kaspar "what good came of it at last?" he will get the answer, "Why, that I cannot tell, but 'twas a famous victory."

Some German scientists have devised an apparatus for exploring the interior of the earth. This discovery comes at a good time. There is no longer any mystery about the North and South Poles, the innermost parts of China and Tibet have been traversed by white men, and Colonel Roosevelt has put on the map the only river which can run up hill and down dale. Nothing of special importance can be learned about the objects in the firmament, since such information as how they dig canals on Mars, etc., would merely gratify idle curiosity. With the interior of the earth the case is different. There are doubtless unimagined stores of wealth down there. Men are walking over deposits of rich ore without suspecting it. There is water to be had in the deserts if one but knew where to bore for it. Many a worthless farm is the lid of an undreamed-of gold-cord. These Germans are coming to the United States to exhibit their device, and we venture to say that they will make more money and get more free advertising than even their countryman, Dr. Friedman, of tuberculosis cure fame.

BLINDNESS.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

Henry James told that once, while traveling along the mountains of North Carolina he was very much disturbed by the evidences of what he called unmitigated squalor. Every now and then he would come across a rude little log cabin set in a dismal clearing. Its chinks were roughly plastered with clay, and as it stood there, with the hills around it, it seemed as if the mountaineer had purposely made it as forbidding as he could.

The smaller trees he had cut down, and their charred stumps, unpromising and ugly to a degree, remained to add to the havoc that had been wrought. The big trees had been girdled and killed, that their beautiful foliage might not cast any shade; and around the whole cheerless outfit ran a zigzag rail fence to keep out the cattle and pigs, and to give fitting tone to the picture.

There the mountaineer dwelt with his wife and children; and as his eyes swept out over the Indian corn planted at irregular intervals between the dead stumps and trees and on to the chickens and pigs feeding in the woods, his gaze took in his whole earthly possessions, barring an axe, a gun and a few necessary utensils.

And a bit further down the road, or up as it happened, would be another rude cabin in as dismal a setting, another little stretch of forest despoiled, another squatter and his family given over to ugliness—and not one touch of artificial grace to atone for the loss of Nature's beauty.

As the philosopher thoughtfully rode by and as he looked at one, then another and another of those rude cabin homes, the awful pity of it shocked him through and through. Talk about going back to nature! He said—ah, but he wanted "the best spoils of culture woven in." It was dreary, dull and hopeless; and oppressed by the woesome pictures, he asked the mountaineer who was driving him what sort of people they were that had made those new clearings.

"All of us," replied the driver. "Why, we ain't happy here unless we are getting one of these coves under cultivation."

As in a flash the stranger's eyes were opened and he knew that he had been losing the whole inner significance of the thing. He had looked at the havoc and that was all that he saw. But the settlers—that was very different. When they looked at the stumps there was nothing hideous about them, for they eloquently spoke of the sturdy arms and the obedient axes that had brought victory to the workers. And the dead trees, shorn of their green beauty, allowed the sun to peep through on their corn. Even the hideous club rails sang a merry song of earnest toil and of sure reward for their labors. And as for the cabins—why, they were the homes that sheltered themselves and their families; and the whole clearing, which to him had been pitilessly ugly, to them was a symbol redolent with victories.

And he smiled as he fancied the settlers peeping in upon him and his indoor ways of life at Cambridge, utterly blind to the idealism he saw it.

And the point of it all? It was a lecture to students and he was trying to impress upon them the importance of being as little blind as possible in dealing with folk whose lives, ideals, environment and all were totally different from theirs. He told them that the whole world was more or less blind in that way, but cautioned them to remember to be very slow in judging other lives, other ideals, other thoughts than their own, for if they might somehow get a glimpse down under the surface where the real selves lived they might realize that they were the ones who had missed the beauty and the inner significance.

And one thinks that as the deep student, Henry James, found his revelation there on the rough mountainside, it must have made him feel very blind to the interests of those mountaineers in their squalid-looking homes, and he must have realized, as seldom, if ever, before, that the inner selves of us all surge along under cover, with no one quite understanding, and with few caring very much.

And the strange part of it is, it is not only among the mountains of North Carolina, back in the districts where the squatters hold forth, that we need to remember to be very tolerant indeed of the folk that we meet, but, rather particularly, among those who are closest at hand. We have ambitions, ideals, purposes and plans and notions of our own; and, at best, it is only the few who half understand. And they—perhaps if we were less blind, less self-centered than we are, and might look through their eyes, we might learn to admire where we have only criticised.

It is appalling to think of those way-back squatters viewing their lives as Henry James viewed them—

but, happily, he saw the mud, they found the stars. And it is mighty subduing if we only remember that it may be nothing but blindness that keeps us from learning the inner significance of lives and of conditions all around us which we do not admire over-much.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"I called, Mrs. Jims, to take my conge." "Well, you won't get it, for we never had nothing like that of yours here."—Baltimore American.

Pompous lady: "Must I put this stamp on myself?" Post Office Clerk: "Well, you can if you like, but it's useless to put it on the letter."—London Standard.

"Some day," cried the outraged poet, "you editors will fight for my work." "All right," sighed the editor, resignedly, "I'll be a good sport if I get licked."—Puck.

"I was so disappointed that I was out the other day when you called, Mrs. Percival." "So was I. I felt I'd find you, because as I turned the corner I saw you go in."—Boston Transcript.

"Do you know his wife well?" "Not at all." "Would you like to be introduced to her?" "I don't think it would be safe. I'm friends he always blames for keeping him out late."—Detroit Free Press.

"I suppose you are thinking up new things to tell the people out home." "No," replied Senator Sorghum. "I'm trying to find some way to take back what I told them when I was here before."—Washington Star.

The sailor: "Don't be alarmed, miss, but the steamer has sprung a leak and is quite likely to sink within fifteen minutes." The young man: "Mercy, how very sudden!" "Yes, miss. Will you let me add that I mean to do my best to save you miss?" Thank you, sir, but of course I can't be saved unless my chaperone is saved, too." "Very stout lady with the hock nose!" "Yes," "Good night, miss."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Thrifty Genius.

There is a certain famous violinist who frequently visits this country, and who among his acquaintances, is almost as noted for his parsimony as for his genius. Among this musician's admirers was a young woman who was determined, if possible, to procure some souvenir of the great man. Her opportunity came one rainy day when she chanced to encounter the musician on Broadway. He was provided with an old cotton umbrella, green with age; while the young woman carried a nice new silk one.

"Oh, if you would only give me some slight remembrance of yourself—no matter how small!"

The great man surveyed her keenly, and then gave a glance at the old cotton umbrella that covered him. This he thrust into her hands, saying:

"Certainly, my dear young lady, I shall be delighted. We will exchange umbrellas."—Lippincott's.

Hard on Clark.

It is conceded in Washington that Dr. Frank G. Clark is the most atrocious punster in America, or, for the matter of that, in the entire solar system. The other night at the club a company was talking about puns. Somebody asked H. what was the best pun he had ever heard. H. replied: "That one about the duck—goes into the water, you remember, for divers reasons, and comes out from sundry motives."

Two lawyers, one a veteran and the other a novice, were arguing a case before a judge renowned for his incorruptibility. The novice, however, was unaware of this. Taking the veteran, his opponent, aside before the case went on he said:

"Don't you think it would be a good idea for me to send a box of cigars to the judge, with my card in it?"

The other lunged up his hands in horror. "Man, your case would be as good as lost!" he exclaimed. "That judge prides himself on his honesty above all else, and he'd decide against you, no matter what the evidence was, simply to teach you not to try bribery with him."

"Oh, I guess it'll be all right if I send the cigars to the novice. The other, too disgusted to give him any further good advice, left him to his fate."

The case was tried and decided by the judge in favor of the novice. The latter, much elated, buttonholed his veteran opponent as he was leaving the court room.

"Well, I sent the cigars to the judge!" he announced, triumphantly. "You did, did you?" said the other incredulously. "I'm simply amazed that he decided in your favor."

The Reason.

A gentleman, rushing from his dining room into the hall and sniffling disgustedly, demanded of James, the footman, whence arose the outrageous odor that was pervading the whole house. To which James replied:

"You see, sir, today's a saint's day, and the butler, 'e's 'igh church, and is burning incense, and the cook, she's low church, and is burning brown paper to hobbiate the incense."—Tit-Bits.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 13.—Weakness was displayed by the list at the opening of the stock market today and declines were suffered by nearly all issues. Union Pacific was one of the most active securities opening at 156 1/4 for a loss of 1/4. Within twenty minutes it had declined to 155 1/4.

United States Steel Common was 1/4 lower at the beginning of trading but soon had increased this decline. Continued weakness was displayed by American Beet Sugar which made the biggest decline of all the stocks. This issue was sold down to 27 in a few minutes, after having closed at 29 last night.

Among the other losses were: Southern Pacific, 1/4; Amalgamated Copper, 1/4; Corn Products, 1/4; Pennsylvania, 1/4; New York, New Haven & Hartford, 1/4; Missouri Pacific, 1/4; and Atchafalaya, 1/4. Contributing causes for weakness were the Chicago bank failures and weakness in the foreign financial markets due to the political chaos in France and the possibility of a war between Greece and Turkey.

The curb was heavy. Americans in London were weak on narrow trading.

STOLEN WATCH WAS RECOVERED

About a year ago a valuable gold watch was stolen from a family by the name of Burger at the Dinan Brick Company's yard at East Kingston. The East Kingston authorities were notified and suspecting a certain woman of having stolen the watch they searched her house but were unsuccessful in locating the time piece. The story came to the attention of Sheriff Hornbeck of Dutchess county and he had reasons for suspecting a Polish woman in Poughkeepsie of having the watch. A search developed the fact that he was correct in his suspicions and the watch was recovered. The sheriff notified Chief Wood, but as it was an East Kingston case the chief informed the sheriff that he would take the matter up with Justice Mooney as soon as he returned from New York city, when the woman will probably be placed under arrest unless she can explain satisfactorily how the watch came into her possession.

SCHOOL TEACHER KILLED IN AUTO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
East Aurora, N. Y., June 13.—Miss Harriett Clark, 25, an East Aurora school teacher, was instantly killed, and three other persons were injured in a collision between an automobile and a delivery wagon on the Buffalo road about a mile and a half west of this village, about 8 o'clock this morning.

The automobile turned turtle in the ditch. Miss Clark was pinned beneath the body of the machine. Her chest was crushed, her back broken and her skull fractured. The other passengers of the car were Miss Beals, another school teacher of East Aurora; Francis Fritz, a business man, and Ivan Fritz, a brother of Francis, who was driving. All three were hurled out of the machine and landed in the ditch, each sustaining numerous body bruises and minor injuries. The delivery wagon was demolished and the driver was fortunate in escaping by jumping from the wagon.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of Maria C. Youngs of the town of Marbletown has been filed with Surrogate Gill in the surrogate's court and a citation for its probate issued. The testatrix bequeaths the sum of $500 to her nephew, George Lewis of Poughkeepsie; $400 to Christopher Lewis of Poughkeepsie, a nephew; $200 and a gold watch and chain to Cornelia Lewis of Poughkeepsie, a niece; $200 and a set of blue dishes to Maggie Lewis of Poughkeepsie, a niece; $400 to Harvey Britton of Poughkeepsie, a nephew; $200 to Mrs. David Poughkeepsie, a sister-in-law; $100 each to Chester and Austin Lewis, nephews, who reside in Pennsylvania; personal belongings and bric-a-brac to Maggie Lewis and Cornelia Lewis; $100 each to Andrew, Levi, Norman and Jacob Lewis, nephews; wagons, sleighs and harness to her husband, James H. Young; $200 to Ira Snyder of Cottekill, a son; and the balance of the estate equally to George, Cornelia and Maggie Lewis. The testatrix appoints her husband, James H. Young, and Charles C. Hardenburgh of Stone Ridge executors. The will was executed January 10, 1907, and witnessed by John Basten and J. O. Brink, both of Stone Ridge. The value of the estate is $5,000, personal property. Virgil B. Van Wagoner appeared for the executors.

Letters of administration on the estate of Ellen Rooney, of the town of Poughkeepsie, were issued to her son, John F. Rooney. The value of the estate is $25,000, personal property. Byron L. Davis appeared for the administrator.

County Treasurer Snyder has approved under the taxable transfer act, has filed his report of appraisal in the estate of Ebraim M. Bishop of this city. Mr. Bishop left personal property amounting to $11,187.68, and real estate valued at $8,500. The debts, commissions, expenses of administration, etc., amount to $451.90, leaving a net estate of $19,235.78, which is exempt from taxation. Schuyler C. Bishop and Bertha Elmendorf, the executors, were represented by Virgil B. Van Wagoner; Emanuel Metzger appeared for the state comptroller.

County Treasurer Snyder has also filed his report of appraisal in the estate of Daniel B. Ackerman of this city. The personal property amounts to $1,013.82; the real estate is valued at $20,000; the debts, commissions, expenses of administration, etc., amount to $426.50, leaving a net estate of $20,587.32, on which the inheritance tax amounts to $58.83. Elmer Ackerman and David Ackerman, the executors, were represented by Virgil B. Van Wagoner; Emanuel Metzger appeared for the state comptroller.

The report of County Treasurer Snyder in the estate of the Rev. Father Haran of West Hurley has also been filed. Father Haran left two deposits of $2,000 each in the Water County Savings Institution and the Kingston Savings Bank. These deposits were in the joint names of himself and his niece, Catherine E. Gilligan, who had also been his housekeeper for eighteen years. The deposits were formerly in his own name, but several years ago the name changed to the joint names and gave the pass books to her. The state comptroller's office refused to allow the taxable transfer act and the inheritance tax paid. The tax amounts to $216.68. The affidavit of the niece shows that she received no compensation for her services during the time she was housekeeper for her uncle, and that he had placed the account jointly in their names in order that she might have it in the event of his death. Cunningham and Traver appeared for the niece.

Girl Athletes Elect Officers.
The last meeting of the year of the Girls' Athletic Association of Kingston Academy was held Thursday afternoon in the study hall. Miss Ruth Humphrey was elected president, Miss Helen Cullen vice-president, Miss Jane Schnitzler secretary and Miss Josephine Schmidt treasurer. The new president has taken a prominent part in athletics and was the center of the Junior basketball team.

Up-to-Date Brick Yard.
Extensive improvements have been made to the Schleede brick yard at Port Ewen this season, and a sand dryer and carrier have been installed. The machinery is so arranged that it is run with an eight horse power New Way air cooled gasoline engine. The Canfield Supply Company furnished the engine.

THE STORY OF THE STARS AND STRIPES

The American flag is a growth, rather than a creation. Its history can be traced back to the 12th century, or nearly 600 years prior to the first Flag Day, June 14, 1777.

During the first crusade in 1095, Pope Urban II assigned to all of the Christian nations as standards crosses varying in color and design, emblematic of the warfare in which they were engaged. To the Scotch troops was assigned the white saltire, known as the white cross of St. Andrew, on a blue field. The British used a yellow cross, but a century and a quarter later they adopted a red cross on a white field, known as the red cross of St. George.

When James VI of Scotland ascended the throne of England as James I, he combined the two flags, and issued a proclamation requiring all ships to carry the new flag at their main masts. At the same time the vessels of south Britain were to carry at their foremasts the red cross of St. George and the ships of north Britain to carry the white cross of St. Andrew.

The new flag was known as the "King's Colors," the "Union Colors" or the "Great Union," and later as the "Union Jack," and was the one under which the British made all their permanent settlements in America. It was the flag of Great Britain only by proclamation, however; not until 1707 did parliament pass an act definitely uniting the two countries, and their flags, in the same year the government issued regulations requiring the navy to use what was known as the white ensign; the naval reserve, the blue ensign; and the merchant marine, the red ensign. Owing to the fact that the British merchant vessels were everywhere, the colonists in America came to look upon this red ensign as the flag of Great Britain.

The people in the New England colonies were bitterly opposed to the cross in the flag. In 1635 some of the troops in Massachusetts declined to march under this flag and the military commissioners were forced to design other flags for their troops with the cross left out. The design they adopted has not been preserved. In 1652 a mint was established in Boston. Money coined in this mint had the pine tree stamped on one side of it. The pine tree design was also used on New England flags, certainly by 1704 and possibly as early as 1635.

At the outbreak of the revolution the American colonies had no flag common to all of them. In many cases the merchant marine flag of England was used with the pine tree substituted for the Union Jack. Massachusetts adopted the green pine tree on a white field with the motto: "An Appeal to Heaven." Some of the Southern States had the rattlesnake flag with the motto: "Don't Tread on Me" on a white or yellow field. This flag had been used by South Carolina as early as 1764. Benjamin Franklin defended the rattlesnake device on the ground that the rattlesnake is found only in America and that serpent emblems were considered by ancients to be symbols of wisdom.

In September, 1775, there was displayed in the south what is by many believed to be the first distinctly American flag. It was blue with a white crescent, and matched the dress of the troops, who wore caps inscribed "Liberty or death." The colonists desired to adopt a common flag, but they had not yet declared independence and were not at first seeking independence. They took the British flag as they knew it, and made a new colonial flag by dividing the red field with white stripes into 13 alternate red and white stripes. This is known as the Cambridge flag, because it was first unfurled over Washington's headquarters at Cambridge, Mass., on January 1, 1776. It complied with the law of 1707 by having the Union Jack on it; it also represented the 13 colonies by the 13 stripes. As the colonists gradually became converted to the idea that independence from the mother country was necessary, they began to modify the flag, first by leaving off the Union Jack and using only the 13 horizontal stripes. The modified flags were not always red and white, but regularly consisted of combinations of two colors selected from red, white, blue and yellow. The final modification was the replacement of the Union Jack by the white stars on a blue field.

The stars are the only distinctive feature of the American flag. The charming story which credits Betsy Ross with making the first flag of stars and stripes is still accepted by historians. When Washington suggested the six-pointed star, she demonstrated the ease with which a five pointed star could be made by folding a piece of paper and producing one with a single clip of the scissors. Some writers are of the opinion that both stars and stripes in the flag were derived from the coat of arms of the Washington family, but this theory is not generally held.

The official adoption of our first flag was in 1777. On June 14 of that year the Continental Congress passed an act providing that "the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white on a blue field, representing a new constellation." The 13 stars were arranged in a circle to symbolize the perpetuity of the union of the states.

Vermont was admitted to the Union in 1791 and Kentucky in 1792. It was felt that these two new states ought to be recognized on the flag, so in 1794 congress passed an act making the flag 15 stars and 15 stripes. This remained the flag of the United States throughout the war of 1812, until there were 20 states in the Union. In 1816, an effort was again made to modify the flag so that all the new states would be represented on it. To be continually adding stripes would make the flag very awkward in shape and appearance, so after arguing the matter for two years congress decided to return to the original 13 stripes and one star for each state. Congress has never determined the arrangement of the stars nor the shape and proportions of the flag and there has been great variation, especially in the grouping of the stars. There are still many who believe that the symbolic circular grouping of stars should be restored.

SCHOOL TEACHER KILLED IN AUTO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

East Aurora, N. Y., June 13.—Miss Harriett Clark, 25, an East Aurora school teacher, was instantly killed, and three other persons were injured in a collision between an automobile and a delivery wagon on the Buffalo road about a mile and a half west of this village, about 8 o'clock this morning.

The automobile turned turtle in the ditch. Miss Clark was pinned beneath the body of the machine. Her chest was crushed, her back broken and her skull was fractured.

The other passengers of the car were Miss Reals, another school teacher of East Aurora, Francis Fritz, a business man, and Ivan Fritz, a brother of Francis, who was driving. All three were hurled out of the machine and landed in the ditch, each sustaining numerous body bruises and minor injuries. The delivery wagon was demolished and the driver was fortunate in escaping by jumping from the wagon.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of Maria C. Youngs of the town of Marlborough has been filed with Surrogate Gill in the surrogate's court and a citation for the probate issued. The testatrix bequeaths the sum of $200 to her nephew, George Lewis of Poughkeepsie; $400 to Christopher Lewis of Poughkeepsie; $200 to a nephew, a gold watch and chain to Cornelia Lewis of Poughkeepsie, a piece; $200 and a set of blue dishes to Maggie Lewis of Poughkeepsie, a piece; $400 to Harvey Britt of Poughkeepsie; $200 to Mrs. David Lewis of Poughkeepsie, a sister-in-law; $100 each to Chester and Austin Lewis, nephews, who reside in Pennsylvania; personal belongings and bric-a-brac to Maggie Lewis and Cornelia Lewis; $100 each to Andrew, Levi, Norman and Jacob Lewis, nephews; wagons, sleighs and harness to her husband, James H. Young; $200 to Ira Snyder of Cottekill; a rent and the balance of the estate equally to George, Cornelia and Maggie Lewis. The testatrix appoints her husband, James H. Young, and Charles C. Hardenburgh of Stone Ridge executors. The will was executed January 10, 1907, and witnessed by John Basten and J. O. Brink, both of Stone Ridge. The value of the estate is $5,000 personal property. Virgil B. Van Wagoner appeared for the executors.

Letters of administration on the estate of Ellen Rooney of the town of Poughkeepsie were granted to her son, John F. Rooney. The value of the estate is $25 personal property. Byron L. Davis appeared for the administrator.

County Treasurer Snyder has appraised under the taxable transfer act, has filed his report of appraisal in the estate of Daniel H. Ackerman of this city. The personal property amounts to $1,613.82; the real estate is valued at $20,300; the debts, commissions, expenses of administration, etc., amount to $429.46; leaving a net estate of $20,883.26, on which the inheritance tax amounts to $5.83. Elmer Ackerman and David Ackerman, the executors, were represented by Virgil B. Van Wagoner; Emanuel Metzger appeared for the state comptroller.

The report of County Treasurer Snyder in the estate of the Rev. Father Haran of West Hurley has also been filed. Father Haran left two deposits of $2,000 each in the West County Savings Institution and the Kingston Savings Bank. These deposits were in the joint names of himself and his niece, Catherine E. Gilligan, who had also been his housekeeper for eighteen years. The deposits were formerly in his own name, but several years ago he had them changed to the joint names, and gave the pass books to her. The state comptroller's office refused to allow the deposits to be withdrawn by her until proceedings had been taken under the taxable transfer act and the inheritance tax paid. The tax amounts to $216.62. The affidavit of the niece shows that she received no compensation for her services during the time she was housekeeper for her uncle, and that he had placed the account jointly in their names in order that she might have it in the event of his death. Cunningham & Traver appeared for the niece.

Girl Athletes Elect Officers.

The last meeting of the year of the Girls' Athletic Association of Kingston Academy was held Thursday afternoon in the study hall. Miss Ruth Humphrey was elected president, Miss Helen Cullen vice-president, Miss Jane Schmitz secretary and Miss Josephine Schmidt treasurer. The new president has taken a prominent part in athletics and was the center on the Junior basketball team.

THE STORY OF THE STARS AND STRIPES

The American flag is a growth, rather than a creation. Its history can be traced back to the 12th century, or nearly 600 years prior to the first Flag Day, June 14, 1777.

During the first crusade in 1193, Pope Urban II assigned to all of the Christian nations as standards crosses varying in color and design, emblematic of the warfare in which they were engaged. To the Scotch troops was assigned the white saltire, known as the white cross of St. Andrew. The British drew, on a blue field, the British cross, a yellow cross, and a quarter later they adopted a red cross on a white field, known as the red cross of St. George.

When James VI of Scotland ascended the throne of England as James I, he combined the two flags, and issued a proclamation requiring all ships to carry the new flag at their main masts. At the same time the vessels of south Britain were to carry at their foremasts the red cross of St. George and the ships of north Britain to carry the white cross of St. Andrew.

The new flag was known as "King's Colors," the "Union Colors" or the "Great Union," and was the one under which the British made all their permanent settlements in America. It was the flag of Great Britain only by proclamation, however; not until 1707 did parliament pass an act definitely uniting the two countries and their flags. In the same year the government issued regulations requiring the navy to use what was known as the white ensign, the navy reserve, the blue ensign, and the merchant marine, the red ensign.

At the outbreak of the revolution the American colonies had no flag common to all of them. In many cases the merchant marine flag of England was used with the pine tree substituted for the Union Jack. Massachusetts adopted the green pine tree on a white field with the motto, "An Appeal to Heaven." Some of the Southern States had the rattlesnake flag with the motto, "Don't Tread on Me" on a white or yellow field. This flag had been used by South Carolina as early as 1776. Benjamin Franklin defended the rattlesnake device on the ground that the rattlesnake is found only in America and that serpent emblems were considered by ancients to be symbols of wisdom.

In September, 1776, there was displayed in the south what is by many believed to be the first distinctly American flag. It was blue with a white crescent, and matched the dress of the troops, who wore caps inscribed "Liberty or Death." The colonists desired to adopt a common flag, but they had not yet declared independence and were not at first seeking independence. They took the British flag as they knew it, and made a new colonial flag by dividing the red field with white stripes into 13 alternate red and white stripes. This is known as the Cambridge flag, because it was first unfurled over Washington's headquarters at Cambridge, Mass., on January 1, 1776. It complied with the law of 1797 by having the Union Jack on it; it also represented the 13 colonies by the 13 stripes.

As the colonists gradually became converted to the idea that independence from the mother country was necessary, they began to modify the flag, first by leaving off the Union Jack and using only the 13 horizontal stripes. The modified flags were not always red and white, but regularly consisted of combinations of two colors selected from red, white, blue and yellow. The final modification was the replacement of the Union Jack by the white stars on a blue field.

The stars are the only distinctive feature of the American flag. The charming story which credits Betty Ross with making the first flag of stars and stripes is still accepted by historians. When Washington suggested the six-pointed star, she demonstrated the ease with which a five-pointed star could be made by folding a piece of paper and producing one with a single clip of the scissors. Some writers are of the opinion that both stars and stripes in the flag were derived from the coat of arms of the Washington family, but this theory is not generally held.

The official adoption of our first flag was in 1777. On June 14 of that year the Continental Congress passed an act providing that "the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white on a blue field, representing a new constellation." The 13 stars were arranged in a circle to symbolize the perpetuity of the union of the states.

Vermont was admitted to the Union in 1791 and Kentucky in 1792. It was felt that these two new states ought to be recognized on the flag, so in 1794 congress passed an act making the flag 15 stars and 15 stripes.

This remained the flag of the United States throughout the war of 1812, until there were 20 states in the Union. In 1816, an effort was again made to modify the flag so that all the new states would be represented on it. To be continually adding stripes would make the flag very awkward in shape and appearance, so after arguing the matter for two years, congress decided to return to the original 13 stripes and one star for each state. Congress has never determined the arrangement of the stars nor the shape and proportions of the flag and there has been great variation, especially in the grouping of the stars. There are still many who believe that the symbolic circular grouping of stars should be restored.

CARRANZA IS STUMBLING BLOCK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 13.—The mediators are not yet "out of the woods," according to the view in diplomatic circles today despite the signing of a tentative protocol at Niagara Falls and the optimism of the Washington administration.

While it is admitted the tenseness of the situation which developed over the manner of the naming of a provisional president for Mexico, has been relieved, diplomats say the real crux of the matter lies in General Carranza's attitude.

It is conceded that the administration will do all in its power to gain full recognition from the mediators for the representatives which the Constitutional leader has announced he will send to Canada, notwithstanding the unwillingness of the mediators to admit them to the conference in the absence of an armistice. The opinion here is that Carranza will not agree to lay aside arms during the mediation proceedings.

Officials here admit that the work accomplished at Niagara Falls is likely to be futile, unless General Carranza can be brought into the fold on the same terms as the other delegates.

FEDERALS STILL HOLD MAZATLAN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 13.—The Mexican Federal Army still holds Mazatlan although a determined attack by the Constitutionalists under Gen. Obregon was begun yesterday. Admiral Howard reported to the Navy Department today. The Constitutionalists were repulsed several times suffering severe losses but have not withdrawn. The Federal garrison also suffered heavily. Admiral Howard also reported that the Federal gunboat Guerrero attacked the rebel steamer Culcan near Guaymas and set her afire.

CHARLEY'S BIRTHDAY.

Veteran Court Attendant Warmly Congratulated.

Charles G. Cooper one of the youngest old men in the county is receiving congratulations on all hands today especially by the lawyers of this city, who have known him for years, on the arrival of his eightieth birthday. Mr. Cooper arrived at the court house this morning, where he has been court attendant for many years. He was born in the year of 1835, a large red rose in his buttonhole, and a broad smile on his youthful face, that foretold of the glad occasion.

Cooper, as he is known around the courthouse by his many friends, is just like a young boy, and woe to the young disturbers of the sanctity of the court room, when court is in session, if Charley is around.

He is an old time fisherman and knows all the pools in the fishing streams in the county, and he ought to know them, for today he is revealing the tales of the mammoth trout, weighing anywhere from three to ten pounds which took himself and a couple other men, two hours to land. Charley says that he can compete in agility with any of the young K. A. athletes and feels like a mere lad.

GOING TO HAVERSTRAW.

Wiltwyck Hose Will Go on Bunker to Firemen's Parade.

The boys of Wiltwyck Hose Company are making great preparations for their trip to Haverstraw, where they will parade on Thursday.

The boys, accompanied by the Kingston City Fire and Drum Corps, will leave the engine house on Fair street at 5:30 in the morning and will march to Rondout, where they will board the yacht Bunker, which they have chartered for the day.

It is expected the parade in Haverstraw will be finished by 3 o'clock and as shortly after as can be arranged the return trip will be made so as to arrive home a reasonable hour, probably around 9 or 10 o'clock.

If matters can be arranged so as to arrive home at this hour, the citizens of Kingston will be treated to as fine a parade as has been given in some time. An Absolute Vacuum.

What would seem to be an absolute vacuum may be produced in an extremely simple manner. There is employed a test tube (of tube of glass closed at one end, which in this particular case must be composed of a kind of glass that melts only at a very high temperature. Into the tube is poured molten glass of another kind which melts at a comparatively low temperature. When the latter has cooled, thus forming a solid mass completely filling the tube, a suction pump is attached to the open end of the tube, and heat is then applied until the softer glass inside is again melted. The next step is to withdraw the molten glass by means of the pump, enough being left to close the end of the tube completely, when it is allowed to cool once more. As no air can enter the space left vacant by the withdrawal of the molten mass, a perfect vacuum, it is believed, is produced there.—St. Louis Republic.

Study Your Moods.

People ruled by the mood of gloom attract to them gloomy things. The hopeful, confident and cheerful attract the elements of success. A man's front or back yard will advertise that man's ruling mood in the way it is kept. A woman at home shows her state of mind in her dress. A slattern advertises the ruling mood of hopelessness, carelessness and lack of system. Rags, tatters and dirt are always in the mind before being on the body. The thought that is most put out brings its corresponding visible element to crystallize about you as surely and literally as the visible bit of copper in solution attracts to it the invisible copper in that solution. Every thought of yours has a literal value to you in every possible way. In whatever mood you set your mind does your spirit receive of unseen substance in correspondence with that mood.—Prentice Mulford.

CARRANZA IS STUMBLING BLOCK

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, June 13.—The mediators are not yet "out of the woods," according to the view in diplomatic circles today despite the signing of a tentative protocol at Niagara Falls and the optimism of the Washington administration.

While it is admitted the tenseness of the situation which developed over the manner of the naming of a provisional president for Mexico, has been relieved, diplomats say the real crux of the matter lies in General Carranza's attitude.

It is conceded that the administration will do all in its power to gain full recognition from the mediators for the representatives which the Constitutional leader has announced he will send to Canada, notwithstanding the unwillingness of the mediators to admit them to the conference in the absence of an armistice. The opinion here is that Carranza will not agree to lay aside arms during the mediation proceedings.

Officials here admit that the work accomplished at Niagara Falls is likely to be futile unless General Carranza can be brought into the fold on the same terms as the other delegates.

CHARLEY'S BIRTHDAY.

Veteran Court Attendant Warmly Congratulated.

Charles G. Cooper one of the youngest old men in the county is receiving congratulations on all hands today especially by the lawyers of this city, who have known him for years, on the arrival of his eightieth birthday. Mr. Cooper arrived at the court house this morning, where he has been court attendant for many years in the white coat that he had worn since the year of 1880, a large red rose in his buttonhole, and a broad smile on his youthful face, that foretold of the glad occasion.

Cooper, as he is known around the courthouse by his many friends, is just like a young boy, and woe to the young disturbers of the sanctity of the court room, when court is in session, if Charley is around.

He is an old-time fisherman and knows all the pools in the fishing streams in the county, and he ought to know them to, for today he is revealing the tales of the mammoth trout, weighing anywhere from three to ten pounds which took himself and a couple other men, two hours to land. Charley says that he can compete in agility with any of the young K. A. athletes and feels like a mere lad.

MANIAC RUNS AMUCK ON SHIPBOARD

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Ponta Del Gada, Azores, June 13.—Twenty-five persons suffering from wounds inflicted by an insane steamer passenger were in the hospital of the liner Canopic, bound from Boston to Naples, when she arrived here today.

Five of the wounded passengers were so badly hurt that they will probably die. An Italian steamer passenger, going suddenly insane, ran among the passengers brandishing a long knife. With maniacal strength he fought off the seamen who tried to subdue him and dashed among the terrified passengers.

For hours the maniac held the ship in a panic, while frightened men and women huddled together too full of fear to attempt to overpower the madman.

Finally the maniac was struck over the head from behind and trussed up.

PLANS FOR SAFE AND SANE FOURTH

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Plans are nearly completed for the safe and sane July 4th celebration in Kingston under the auspices of the local Council, K. of C.

Invitations were sent out last week to all local bodies and organizations of the city asking for their co-operation. The celebration will be conducted on broad lines and will be in the strictest sense non-sectarian and non-political.

There will be no street parade of the local order. All citizens of Kingston and vicinity, including women and children of all creeds, are invited to assemble at city hall green July 4 at 9:30 a. m. The chairman of the general committee, William Grogan, will introduce Dr. W. H. Conner, who will be acting mayor that day, as chairman of the gathering. Dr. Leeper will give the invocation. Patriotic singing by 800 school children from the public and parochial schools, with music by Muller's Band of 30 pieces, reading of the Declaration of Independence, and patriotic address by Dr. John G. Coyle of New York, closing with singing by the assemblage of the "Star Spangled Banner," followed by benediction by the Rev. John J. Hickey.

It is the first time any organization in this city has ever held a patriotic celebration of the day and as the citizens will not be asked to assist in defraying the expenses, it is hoped that all the patriotic people of the city will assemble on the city hall green at 9:30 o'clock on that day.

Friskie Gets Five Years.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Schenectady, N. Y., June 13.—Miles R. Friskie, attorney and former member of the assembly, convicted of grand larceny for securing $1,000 from a woman for a fraudulent mortgage, was today sentenced to not less than five years nor more than ten years in Dannemora. The sheriff took the prisoner to state prison at noon.

An Absolute Vacuum.

What would seem to be an absolute vacuum may be produced in an extremely simple manner. There is employed a test tube (A tube of glass closed at one end), which in this particular case must be composed of a kind of glass that melts only at a very high temperature. Into the tube is poured molten glass of another kind which melts at a comparatively low temperature. When the latter has cooled, thus forming a solid mass completely filling the tube, a suction pump is attached to the open end of the tube, and heat is then applied until the softer glass inside is again melted. The next step is to withdraw the molten glass by means of the pump, enough being left to close the end of the tube completely, when it is allowed to cool once more. As no air can enter the space left vacant by the withdrawal of the molten mass, a perfect vacuum, it is believed, is produced there.—St. Louis Republic.

DOCTORS TAKE A DAY OFF AT LACKAWACK

Just Leaf and Eat, Without Wanting Any Time Talking About Cases—Trout With Two Heads the Only Scientific Feature of the Day.

The June meeting of the Ulster County Medical Society was held at Shell's Hotel, Lackawack, on Friday and was devoted entirely to the annual outing of the doctors and their wives and guests. Not even at the formal meeting of the society, which was held after the dinner and lasted 81 seconds, did the doctors allow professional matters to disturb the enjoyment of the day. The business consisted in admitting Dr. Thayer, physician at the Napanoch Reformatory, formerly of the Clinton county, into membership, thanking C. L. McBride for favors received and adopting a resolution regarding a financial matter. Even before and after the dinner the doctors forgot to talk about their "cases" and other scientific and technical matters. They were too busy enjoying the scenery.

Those who attended the meeting were Drs. Norwood, Gillette, Van Wagenen, Robinson, Daniel Connelly, Mambert, Day, Eltinge, Ingalis, Stern, Little, O'Meara, Keefe, Basten, Frank Keator and Gates of this city, Ross of Port Ewen, Thayer of Napanoch, Luther Eimerick of Saugerties and T. O. Keator of Accord. The party went in automobiles, leaving this city at 11 o'clock and reaching the hotel in time for what was announced to be a trout dinner. Trout there were, and such a supply of them that double the number of those in attendance could have been supplied, but the trout were the least part of a dinner that included almost everything one could think of, from little neck clams and tomato salad on to roast turkey and broiled chicken and ended with strawberry shortcake that not only had real strawberries in it but actually more strawberries than shortcake.

On the return trip some of the party visited the Jenny Brook Trout Farm, where they were shown around by one of the nurses who cares for the youthful trout and inspect the various ponds in which are trout in all stages of development, from those in earliest infancy to the pond filled with the father and mother trout to whom the quarter of a million or so baby fishes belong. They also saw the trout works that is to be a feature of the Ulster county fair next August, an infant two inches in length, lively and healthy, but differing from its brothers and sisters in that it has two distinctly formed heads. To guard the trout there is Chief Peter and his squaw and papoose, real Indians who live in teepees in the depths of the woods by the side of the trout stream and give the finishing touch of real wild west atmosphere to the place.

The only mishap of the day was a punctured tire on the automobile of the president of the society. Before starting the president said he had a premonition that he was going to have tire trouble, and then the tire proceeded to make good on the "hunch." There was added interest when after replacing the tire the fact developed that the pump wouldn't work, but soon a good Samaritan doctor with a pump that worked came along and so Dr. Keator wasn't more than half an hour late.

But none of these things could drive the memory of the dinner at Shell's from the minds of any of the party.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTS REVIEW

(By Frank G. Menke.)

Westbury, N. Y., June 13.—No sporting event in American history has drawn together a more enthusiastic, more fashionable crowd, than that which came today to cheer the American and English polo teams who met here on the Meadowbrook field in the first game of the series that gives the world's championship to the victor.

It was a 40,000 crowd; one that taxed every bit of seating and standing room in the immense enclosure. It was a crowd that on one side represented the wealth and aristocracy of America and Europe; on the other side that represented the middle class Americans, who came from all sections of the country so that they might be here to feel the wondrous thrill that a polo game alone can give.

The American team, favorite in the betting, went into battle carrying hundreds of thousands of American dollars on its chances to win, not only today's game, but the series as well. But even though some polo "wise men" figured that the English team isn't formidable enough to wrest the championship from the American four, a lot of English money came into sight last night and early today, and the English backers lured on by the short opportunity, lunged heavily on the chances of Lord Wimborne's aggregation.

Both teams are trained to the minute; their ponies, benefited by a rather extended rest, showed their eagerness for battle when they were given mild workouts in the morning. The early indications were that the games today would equal in interest, in thrills and in closeness any that ever have been staged in an international polo combat.

The crowd began arriving many hours before the game was called, and amused itself during the interval by giving the "once over" to the wonderfully and daintily gowned women. Soon after daybreak the automobile caravan started to move on its way to the Meadowbrook Club from New York city, New Jersey, Connecticut and distant points in New York state. The roads that lead to Westbury were so packed with automobiles after the noon hour, that the machines had to crawl along causing many persons to arrive late.

The Long Island railroad, running a fleet of special trains from New York city and Brooklyn, bumped its human freight into Westbury at the rate of more than 100 a minute.

The west stand where the boxes were placed, and where ordinary seats commanded an average price of $12.50, was a bower of beauty, with its waving flags, its bunting drapings, its beautiful women in the gowns that included every color of the rainbow, and seemed reflected in the east stand that housed girls as pretty, as dainty and as prettily carbed as their wealthier sisters on the other side of the lot.

The leaders of both teams while satisfied with the condition of their men and ponies, were in no way overconfident as to the ultimate result of the day's battle.

"We are in good shape" said Captain Monty Waterbury, of the American championship outfit. "We have trained hard, and we have tried to perfect our team work. I do not care to make any predictions as to the outcome of the game or the series. The English team this year strikes me as just about as strong as that aggregation last year—and everybody knows they gave us a terrific fight. They'll fight every minute of the game, and we'll fight them back, and it looks to me as if the best team will win."

"I am hopeful of victory—but just hopeful" declares Major F. W. Barrett, captain of the English team. "We have a most wholesome respect for the American poloists, and we are not boasting about what we'll do—or what we hope to do. But we'll give the champions a fight—you can bet on that, and before the battle has gone along very far they'll know that they've got their hands pretty full."

The lineup of the American team, as announced this morning, but which is subject to last minute changes is as follows:
No. 1—Rene La Montagne.
No. 2—Monty Waterbury (capt.)
No. 3—Devereux Milburn.
Back—Larry Waterbury.
Substitutes—Charles C. Rumsey, Hal Phipps, Malcolm Stevenson and Foxhall Keene.

The Britons probably will stick to the lineup announced yesterday, although they, like the Americans, often exercise the option of changing their minds—and their lineups—at the last minute. The lineup, most recently announced, is:
No. 1—Captain H. A. Tompkinson.
No. 2—Captain Leslie St. Claire Cheape.

No. 3—Major F. W. Barrett, (capt.)
Back—John A. Traill.
Substitutes, Captain Vivian N. Lockett and Lord Wimborne.

Social Center's July Fourth.

There was an important meeting of the Social Center Association held on Friday afternoon at the Federation House. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. W. N. Fessenden; first vice president, Miss Mabel Thompson; second vice president, Mrs. Barrett; secretary, Mrs. Henry Van Hovenberg; treasurer, Miss Mary Baker. One of the important features of this meeting was the perfecting of plans for the celebration of July Fourth. These Fourth of July celebrations at the Federation House and on the grounds have become an annual affair of great importance and interest to the entire neighborhood and are both delightful and educational. This year the Federation House Girls' Club, Miss Mary Heiser, president, have made special arrangements for the program which promises to be particularly attractive. On the grounds from five to eight o'clock there will be a band and refreshments in addition to the program, which will in the near future be published in full.

CARNIVAL COMPANY LOSES.

John Stewart Gets Judgment for $100 for Injuries.

City Judge O'Reilly on Friday handed down a decision in the action brought by John Stewart against Boon & Tice, Inc., who furnished the shows for the recent carnival held by the Odd Fellows' Association at the Athletic Field, awarding Mr. Stewart a judgment of $100. The action was brought to recover for injuries received while attending the carnival. According to the story of Mr. Stewart he had gone to the carnival one night during its stay and had visited the motorcade where bicycle races were being held. With other spectators he was sitting in the seats provided for the patrons when he alleged he was hit in the face by a bullet fired from a gun in the shooting gallery located opposite the motorcade. The case was recently tried in city court by Van Etten & Cook for Mr. Stewart and Newton Fessenden for the carnival company.

However, a strenuous work-out was planned for the crews at sunset this evening.

DOCTORS TAKE A DAY OFF AT LACKAWACK

Just Leaf and Eat, Without Wasting Any Time Talking About Cases—Trout With Two Heads the Only Scientific Feature of the Day.

The June meeting of the Ulster County Medical Society was held at Shell's Hotel, Lackawack, on Friday and was devoted entirely to the annual outing of the doctors and their wives and guests. Not even at the formal meeting of the society, which was held after the dinner and lasted 81 seconds, did the doctors allow professional matters to disturb the enjoyment of the day. The business consisted in admitting Dr. Thayer, physician at the Napanoch Reformatory, formerly of the Clinton county, into membership, thanking C. L. McBride for favors received and adopting a resolution regarding a financial matter. Even before and after the dinner the doctors forgot to talk about their "cases" and other scientific and technical matters. They were too busy enjoying the scenery.

Those who attended the meeting were Drs. Norwood, Gillette, Van Wagenen, Robinson, Daniel, Connelly, Mambert, Day, Eltinge, Ingalls, Stern, Little, O'Meara, Keefe, Basten, Frank Kelder and Gabel, this city, Rose of Port Ewen, Thayer of Napanoch, Luther Emerick of Saugerties and T. O. Keator of Accord. The party went in automobiles, leaving this city at 11 o'clock and reaching the hotel in time for what was announced to be a trout dinner. Trout were there, and such a supply of them that double the number of those in attendance could have been supplied, but the trout were the least part of a dinner that included almost everything one could think of, from little neck clams and tomato salad on to roast turkey and broiled chicken and ended with strawberry shortcake that not only had real strawberries in it but actually more strawberries than shortcake.

On the return trip some of the party visited the Jenny Brook Trout Farm, where they were shown around by one of the nurses who cares for the youthful trout and inspect the various ponds in which are trout in all stages of development, from those in earliest infancy to the pond filled with the father and mother trout to whom the quarter of a million or so baby fishes belong. They also saw the trout wonder that is to be a feature of the Ulster county fair next August, an infant two inches in length, lively and healthy, but differing from its brothers and sisters in that it has two distinctly formed heads.

To guard the trout there is Chief Peter and his squaw and papoose, real Indians who live in tents in the depths of the woods by the side of the trout stream and give the finishing touch of real wild west atmosphere to the place.

The only mishap of the day was a punctured tire on the automobile of the president of the society. Before starting the president said he had a premonition that he was going to have tire trouble, and then the tire proceeded to make good on the premonition that he was going to have tire trouble, and then the tire proceeded to make good on the premonition that he was going to have tire trouble.

Mohawk Valley Suffragists.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Utica, June 13.—Flowers, banners and bands of yellow, white and blue ribbon were the popular things in Utica today for this is the day long awaited in the Mohawk Valley when the woman suffragists will get their courage up to come forth and be counted for the sake of the cause that means so much to them. Many thousands of the city's population witnessed the parade.

No. 3—Major F. W. Barrett.

One of the important features of this meeting was the perfecting of plans for the celebration of July Fourth. These Fourth of July celebrations at the Federation House and on the grounds have become an annual affair of great importance and interest to the entire neighborhood and are both delightful and educational. This year the Federation House girls' Club, Miss Mary Heiser, president, has made special arrangements for the program which promises to be particularly attractive. MENKE'S DAILY SPORTS REVIEW

(By Frank G. Menke.)

Westbury, N. Y., June 13.—No sporting event in American history has drawn together a more enthusiastic, more fashionable crowd, than that which came today to cheer the American and English polo teams who met here on the Meadowbrook field in the first game of the series that gives the world's championship to the victor.

It was a 40,000 crowd; one that taxed every bit of seating and standing room in the immense enclosure. It was a crowd that on one side represented the wealth and aristocracy of America and Europe; on the other side the representatives of the middle class Americans who came from all sections of the country so that they might be here to feel the wondrous thrill that a polo game alone can give.

The American team, favorite in the betting, went into battle carrying hundreds of thousands of American dollars on its chances to win, not only today's game, but the series as well. But even though some polo "wise men" figured that the English team isn't formidable enough to wrest the championship from the American four, a lot of English money came into sight last night and early today, and the English backers lured on by the short opportunity, plunged heavily on the chances of Lord Wimborne's aggregation.

Both teams are trained to the minute; their ponies, benefited by a rather extended rest, showed their eagerness for battle when they were given mild workouts in the morning. The early indications were that the games today would equal in interest, in thrills and in closeness any that ever have been staged in an international polo combat.

The crowd began arriving many hours before the game was called, and amused itself during the interval by giving the "once over" to the wonderfully and daintily gowned women. Soon after daybreak the automobile caravan started to move on its way to the Meadowbrook Club from New York city, New Jersey, Connecticut and distant points in New York state. The roads that lead to Westbury were so packed with automobiles after the noon hour, that the machines had to crawl along causing many persons to arrive late.

The Long Island railroad, running a fleet of special trains from New York city and Brooklyn, bumped its human freight into Westbury at the rate of more than 100 a minute.

The west stand where the boxes were placed, and where ordinary seats commanded an average price of $12.50, was a hovel of beauty, with its waving flags, its bunting drapings, its beautiful women in the pinks that included every color of the rainbow, that seemed reflected in the east stand that housed girls as pretty, as dainty and as prettily garbed as their wealthier sisters on the other side of the lot.

The leaders of both teams while satisfied with the condition of their men and ponies, were in no way overconfident as to the ultimate result of the day's battle.

"We are in good shape," said Captain Monty Waterbury, of the American championship outfit. "We have trained hard, and we have tried to perfect our team work. I do not care to make any predictions as to the outcome of the game or the series. The English team this year strikes me as just about as strong as that aggregation last year—and everybody knows they gave us a terrific fight. They'll fight every minute of the game, and we'll fight them back, and it looks to me as if the best team will win."

"I am hopeful of victory—but just hopeful," declares Major F. W. Barrett, captain of the English team. "We have a most wholesome respect for the American poloists, and we are not boasting about what we'll do—or what we hope to do. But we'll give the champions a fight—you can bet on that, and before the battle has gone along very far they'll know that they've got their hands pretty full."

The lineup of the American team, as announced this morning, but which is subject to last minute changes is as follows:

No. 1—Rene La Montagne.
No. 2—Monty Waterbury (capt.).
No. 3—Deveraux Milburn.
Back—Larry Waterbury.

CARNIVAL COMPANY LOSES.
John Stewart Gets Judgment for $100 for Injuries.

City Judge O'Reilly on Friday handed down a decision in the action brought by John Stewart against Boon & Tice, Inc., who furnished the shows for the recent carnival held by the Odd Fellows' Association at the Athletic Field, awarding Mr. Stewart a judgment of $100. The action was brought to recover for injuries received while attending the carnival. According to the story of Mr. Stewart he had gone to the carnival one night during its stay and had visited the motorcade where bicycle races were being held. With other spectators he was sitting in the seats provided for the patrons when he alleged he was hit in the face by a bullet fired from a gun in the shooting gallery located opposite the motorcade.

The case was recently tried in city court by Van Etten & Cook for Mr. Stewart and Newton Fessenden for the carnival company.

Idiocy Properly Treated.
Doctor Grouch was going leisurely down street the other evening when a cutup stopped him and asked him to guess a silly riddle. Grouch halted off and soaked the cutup in the jaw so hard that he bumped a hole in the sidewalk with his head. There were no arrests.—Kansas City Star.

The Insurance Co-Operation
The life insurance men have caught the spirit of co-operation. They are preparing a country wide advertising campaign to preach the reasons why life insurance is needed.

In this campaign the daily newspapers will be the chief medium used.

In each locality the men who sell life insurance will be primed to reap the harvest that will follow.

They will follow up the advertising in a way that will return a treasure of premiums.

What the life insurance men plan to do can be done by any other great interest.

National advertisers anxious to broaden their markets are invited to communicate with the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York.
